Two Negroes Are Shot in First Disorder to Mark
Relief and Reconstruction Work.

OFFICIAL DEATH
TOLL NOW 157

Evacuation of Moore Haven Completed Despite Protests of Inhabitants.

BY UNITED NEWS.

With the official death toll mounting to 157, with property damage estimated at approximately $200,000, and with Governor Martin commanding all persons to evacuate the Lake Oke-chobee region, the aftermath of the recent West Indian hurricane which devasted south Florida has assumed a more serious aspect than at any time since the storm broke.

Adjutant General Foster, of the Florida national guard, this afternoon announced that thus far official checkup of the dead in the Okeechobee district amounted to 315, with possibilities of more being later added. He pointed out that most of the dead had been drowned in the Moore Haven region, when Lake Okeechobee overflowed, covering miles of surrounding territory with more than eight feet of water.

Evacuation Ordered.
Governor Martin has ordered all civilians to leave the Okeechobee district immediately because of the danger of disease, following the death of hundreds of humans, and countless animals of all varieties. The ghastly task of recovering the dead is progressing rapidly in the Moore Haven and other Okeechobee sections in spite of the almost impenetrable morass there of combined deep water and floating debris.

Two marines and two negroes were shot this afternoon in Miami in a threatened race riot which followed when the marines came to enforce two negroes looting a store in the negro section of the city—a section from which most of the male negroes have been conscripted for labor.

Two companies of troops, 60 police with riot guns, and 25 deputy sheriffs were rushed to the scene. Although no riot actually occurred, officials claim one might have risen had it not been for the prompt arrival of the forces.

Marines Wounded.
When the negroes returned the fire of the marines, two marines, J. D.
Allen and E. L. Melbourne, were wounded. Allen in the left leg and right arm and Melbourne in the right hip. Both marines were placed under arrest at a hospital. Twenty armed negroes were found in the vicinity of the shooting, and were also arrested.
This is the first disorder which has marred the relief and reconstruction work in the storm district.

The official death list in the storm area today reads: Miami and environment, 100; Fort Lauderdale, 16; Hollywood, 80; St. Petersburg, 1; and Oke-chobee region, 315, making a total of 457.

Damage in the Miami district is estimated at $100,000,000; at Fort Lauderdale, $35,000,000, and at Hollywood, $80,000,000. Damage in the Okeechobee region has not yet been estimated, but it is expected to be smaller in proportion to the loss of life than in other places.

In the Florida east coast cities, building is being rushed, by thousands of extra laborers, many of whom have been conscripted from the negro districts of the cities. In Miami work men are already tearing down the 17-story Meyer-Kaiser building, which was completed but a few months ago at a cost of more than $1,500,000. This huge building was blown at an angle

HUGE TASK FACES MIAMI AS PEOPLE ESTIMATE LOSSES

Big Army of Losers Made Up of Men in Professional, Clerical, Trade and Labor Lines.

MIAMI SKYLINE
SHOWS NO CHANGE

Losses to Large Apartment Houses, Hotels and Office Buildings Largely Covered by Insurance.

BY SAM W. SMALL.
(Staff Correspondent of The Constitution.)

Miami, September 24.—(Special.)—
The survivors who came back into Atlanta after Sherman's army moved out and left their firebrand to finish their destructive program, can realize what the people of Miami are doing these days since the Sherman of Sargasso rampaged through their Aladdin-like city.

The work of inspecting ruins, salvaging what can be and calculating the irreparable damages and losses is occupying the greater moiety of the regular population. It is a huge task. So many elements of cost, of sentiment, of association, enter into individual estimates that when reported they swell the aggregate far over true actuary figures. The consequence is that all early statements of losses shrink spectacularly in the face of final facts. It is quite understandable why that should be so.

When the poignancy of the present privations passes and the real work of rehabilitating homes, apartments and stores goes on, the loss of the Miami will not be half, I believe, as formidable in its total as is now calculated.

Who Were the Large Losers.

The Miami skyline as seen from the bay side shows no gap or change of contour. A panoramic photograph of it would reveal to no foreign inspector of it that a rip-roaring hurricane had ever touched it. Closer up one sees that the larger hotels and apartment houses had corners and cornices damaged somewhat, awnings torn to ribbons, windows blown in and the interiors were flooded by the tidal wave to the irreparable damage of furniture and fittings. Such losses were covered largely by insurance policies and the restorations can be promptly made with slight actual loss to the owners.

The lovely temple owned by Governor James M. Cox and used as the laboratory of his Miami Daily News stands in place as solid as Stone mountain and but slightly seamed by the storm. It suffered most from the flooding in of the storm-driven waters, but that damage can be quickly repaired.

The stores in the business quadrangle of some 40 blocks were hard hit by the great wind, some upper stories wrecked, fronts smashed, lower levels flooded and stocks damaged.
These actual damages are heavy, but the true figures will not be known until inventories are taken and insurance contracts are let and finished.

The Big Army of Losers.

The long roll of losers is made up of those who were carrying on the work of the city in professional, clerical, trade and labor lines. Thousands of them had adopted Miami as their permanent abode and became actual or purchasing home-owners. They had striven to fill their habitations with family comforts and small luxuries, had beautified their premises and entered into the spirit of tropical ease.

Anti-Typhoid Serum for Florida Leaves Candler Field by Airplane

Captain H. Wier Cook ready to fly to Florida with anti-typhoid serum for the flood-stricken areas.

Anti-typhoid serum from Indianapolis, destined for hurricane sufferers in storm-stricken Miami and vicinity, early Friday afternoon left Candler field in an emergency plane brought here from Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala., and piloted by Captain H. Wier Cook. Captain Cook in the plane in which he left Indianapolis was forced down Thursday near Marietta by engine trouble.
In the picture to the left Sergeant W. T. Sherwood is seen helping Captain Cook load the anti-typhoid serum into the plane after it had been transferred by automobile from the stranded plane near Marietta. Silhouetted against the sky between the wings of the plane is Doug Davis, airman who refueled the plane while it was being loaded with the serum. Colonel C.
N. Danforth, head of the Fourth Corps area air service, is shown in the picture to the right bidding Captain Cook goodspeed on his humanitarian mission.
The emergency plane was flown from Maxwell field by Lieutenant G.
A. Whitley, who made the trip to Atlanta in an hour and a half, an earlier start than 9:30 o'clock being hindered by fog on the flying field.
Colonel Danforth and army surgeon Friday inspected the plane in which Captain Cook was forced down near Marietta, and found that a lack of oil had caused a connecting rod to push through the crank-case, Captain Cook being lucky in landing at all as the plane might have crashed under the circumstances. The plane can be flown from the field in which it lies without difficulty as soon as army air service mechanics install a new engine, it was said. A new motor is being sent from Maxwell field.

SERUM REACHES JACKSONVILLE.

Jacksonville, Fla., September 24.— (AP)—Lieutenant H. W. Cook, U. S. army, flying from Indianapolis to Miami, with a load of typhoid serum reached Jacksonville late today. He was to hop off early tomorrow on the last leg of his journey.

BROTHER TESTIFIES AGAINST BROTHER IN 'GRAFT' TRIAL

Small-Town Banker Tells Court Daugherty Destroyed Damaging Evidence Involving $150,000

New York, September 24.—(AP)— Brother was forced to testify against brother today as the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial reached the highest point of tension since it opened almost three weeks ago.

Mal S. Daugherty, small-town banker and brother of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, was forced to tell on the witness stand that his brother had willfully destroyed evidence which the government claims would have shown that he received graft money totaling $150,000.

Admissibility of the banker's testimony was hotly contested by the defense and opening of the court session was held up half an hour while attorneys for both sides argued in Judge Mack's chambers.

At 11 o'clock the judge strode to the bench and United States Attorney Buckner immediately called Mal Daugherty. The banker was visibly nervous as he was sworn and Harry Daugherty sat at the defense table twirling his hat rimmed glasses.

"Other witnesses," Buckner began,
"have testified that the ledger sheets
in the Midland National bank in Som-ersville, Ohio, of which you are president, referring to the accounts of your brother and Jesse
W. Smith, his aide, are now missing.
When did you see them last?"
"In October of last year."

"That was when you brought them to New York at the time Jesse Smith was subpoenaed in connection with this conspiracy?"
"Yes."

Books Not Examined.
"You did this although the records themselves had not been subpoenaed?"
"I did."

"And they were not examined by the grand jury at that time?"
"They were not."

"What did you do with them then?"
"My brother took them back."

"When you were subpoenaed again last December?" Buckner continued, "and ordered to bring these papers to New York, what did you do?"
"I left my home for a trip and was informed by telephone at Lima, Ohio, that I had been subpoenaed. I immediately went to my brother's home in Columbus."

"What was your conversation with him then?"
"I told him that he had been the last one to have those sheets and that I needed them to comply with the new subpoena."

"What did he tell you then?"
"Frequently Discussed Records."
"He said he had destroyed the records."

"How had he destroyed them?"
"He said he had burned them."

"Why did he say he had burned them?"
"He gave no reason."

"Had you and he frequently discussed these sheets and the entries therein?"
"That is all, Mr. Daugherty."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS CALLS FOR MEETING ON ARMS REDUCTION

$60,000 RAISED

BENEFIT AT HOWARD
SECURES LARGE SUM

Many Atlantans Reported Safe Who Have Been Listed 'Missing'; Others Still Unheard From.

With approximately $60,000 subscribed to Atlanta's portion of the Florida relief fund, Atlantans contributed generously to the fund Friday. It was announced from Red Cross headquarters that Sears, Roebuck and company was the largest donor of the day with a check for $5,000.

Following immediately behind the Sears-Roebuck check the Red Cross headquarters received subscriptions amounting to $355 from the Civitan club which were raised at the regular weekly luncheon of the club held Friday at 12:30 at the Atlanta Athletic club.

About $1,600 was raised for the Florida relief fund at a great benefit performance staged at the Howard theater at 11:30 o'clock Friday night.
Performers from other theaters as well as those on the bill at the Howard both this week and next, donated their services to the cause, as did the musicians, stage hands, operators and other employees. In addition to visiting vaudeville acts, a full showing of the Howard programs for both this week and next was given.

The benefit was given by the Public Theaters corporation, which operates the Howard in conjunction with similar benefits given in the other theaters they operate all over the country.

The Excelsior Laundry company and Eugene Harris, Inc., also contributed to the fund Friday with checks amounting to $25 each.

Reported Killed, Is Safe.
Frank McKenzie, nephew of Mrs.
J. W. Ellison, of 650 Highland avenue, former Atlantian, who was reported to have been killed in the Miami hurricane, is alive and safe, according to a wire received Friday by Mrs. Ellison from R. E. McKenzie, the father.

The elder McKenzie, who is a contractor on the Southern railway, left Miami, upon receiving news that his son's body had been washed up on the beach, but upon reaching the storm-stricken city he was joyfully surprised to find his son alive and well. He at once wired Mrs. Ellison, but did not give details of how his son's "death" came to be reported.

Telegrams from other former Atlantians apprising friends and relatives of their safety were still being received Friday. Guy Williamson wired his mother, Mrs. R. A. Williamson, that he is safe in Miami while the family of the Rev. Fred B. Picketts is also safe in Miami, according to a wire

Atlanta Aids
Disabled Vets'
Flower Sale

Annual Sale of Forget-Me-Nots Will Be Conducted.

BY BEN COOPER.

Memories of 1918—that year when American guns belched forth defeat and confusion upon the armies of the kaiser, the year which saw an end to the tide of war, but not the flood of injured from that war—will be brought to mind today through the sale of a simple little flower, the forget-me-not.

And, as is usually the case in Atlanta, the supply of forget-me-nots probably will be exhausted long before the setting sun sees the end of the day, for, by purchase of forget-me-nots, Atlantans will show that they appreciate the sacrifice of those boys who compose the membership of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

Atlanta has the reputation of having a big and warm heart, a heart that pulses quickly for human suffering and distress, a heart that is far reaching in its sympathy.

And that heart will respond today when young women rally forth upon the streets to sell forget-me-nots in the cause of the disabled veterans.

Atlanta will remember!

MISSING FUNDS
IN FLORIDA LAID
TO COMPTROLLER

Ernest Amos Is Charged With Irregularities in Handling Interest on State Deposits.

Tallahassee, Fla., September 24.— (AP)—Ernest Amos, state comptroller, today was asked by Governor John W. Martin to explain methods of handling interest money on state funds.

The governor in a letter addressed to the comptroller, asked the latter why $20,215.62 interest on state funds, which he said had been collected from the Barnett National Bank of Jacksonville, had been permitted to accumulate without an accounting to the state treasury. The governor claimed in his letter that this had been accumulating for nine years, but in the next paragraph of the letter the governor said that he found upon his return from the storm area that the comptroller had deposited with the state treasurer the sum of $20,215.62, "this presumably being interest money paid you by the Barnett National Bank of Jacksonville upon receipts of public funds placed by you in said bank during the past nine years."

Charges of Auditors.

The letter says that interest on state funds collected during the administrations of Governor Sidney J.
Catts and Governor Carey A. Hardee has not been turned into the state treasury, asserts that the comptroller has large sums of state money accumulated in Florida banks and that the comptroller has been permitting money to remain in banks for from 30 to 60 days before it is turned over to the treasurer and asks an explanation.

Governor Martin asked the comptroller to advise whether he had collected interest on public fund deposits from banks other than the Jacksonville bank and which have not been deposited with the state treasurer of the state of Florida during the last nine years.

"The auditor's report made in this investigation," the governor wrote,
"shows that you have been carrying in various banks of this state in your name as comptroller, or otherwise, from one to two million dollars each month, and you have held this money before paying the same to the state treasurer."

Data Is Demanded.

The governor requested the comptroller to name the banks and amounts where other public funds, if any, have been deposited, "and whether or not interest is being paid by you to said banks upon the sums which you have or have had deposited there," if any interest had been received from financial institutions other than the Barnett National bank, and "why you collected during the last nine years $20,215.62 from this bank on funds of the state of Florida, and permit other banks to retain considerable sums of money deposited by you therein without the payment of interest."

As chief executive of the state, the governor said: "The investigation and audit referred to above having disclosed the facts mentioned therein, and such disclosure having developed irregularities of a grave character, prompts me to request of you the information sought in this communication."

ATTACK ON BRITAIN
LAUNCHED BY CHINA

Lord Cecil Criticizes
Statement by Delegate,
But Predicts Early Settlement of Trouble.

Geneva, Switzerland, September 24.

(AP)—The League of Nations assembly today unanimously adopted a resolution that a general conference for the reduction of armaments shall be convened before next September unless material difficulties prevent.

M. Paul-Boncour, for France; Viscount Cecil, for Great Britain, and Herr Von Schubert, for Germany, pledged their countries to support the conference with all earnestness.

China, only recently elected a member of the league council, caused a sensation today by launching an accusation against Great Britain of bombardment and the killing of Chinese on the Yangtze river. It is unusual, if not unprecedented, for one member of the league to make charges publicly against another from the rostrum, especially when both belong to the council, and this incident is described as showing that the assembly is becoming a real forum for airing international grievances.

Chao-Hsin Chu alleged that on July 8, August 2 and August 29, a number of native ships and small boats were wrecked by British merchantmen and more than 100 passengers were drowned. He added that Chinese soldiers who sought to investigate were prevented by a British gunboat, and the Chinese were obliged to detain the merchantmen.

On September 5, the Chinese spokesman charged, a gunboat bombarded and killed 300 gendarmes at Wanhsin, while others bombarded the town, destroying 1,000 houses and slaying 1,000 civilians obliging Chinese troops to return the fire in self-defense. In conclusion, he stated that the situation was so serious that if it were allowed to become worse, it would endanger peace in the Far East.

Lord Cecil criticized Chao-Hsin Chu for not giving previous notice that he would raise the question. He did not agree with Chao's statement of the facts, but believed the matter would be settled. He insisted, however, that the Chinese statement did not help friendly negotiations.

PUBLISHERS OFFER $50,000 FOR NOVELS

Formal registration of contestants for the $50,000 prize novel contest being conducted by the Woman's Home Companion and the John Day company, publishers, commenced Friday with the issuance of official entry forms.

The magazine and publishing company, which are jointly offering prize awards of $25,000 in cash each for the best novel written by a man and by a woman, respectively, announced the official closing date as July 1, 1927.

In view of the fact that motion picture rights are not surrendered by the prize winners, but may be sold separately, these are the largest cash awards for prize-winning novels ever offered.

Novels of as short a length as 50,000 words will be eligible for the competition, although "preference" will be given to manuscripts of full novel length. Most previous contests have restricted the competition to novels ranging from 80,000 to 120,000 words in length.

It is also announced that collaborations will be accepted, except those between men and women authors. Two or more men may join in competing for the $25,000 prize for the best novel written by a man, and two or more women may together enter the lists for the prize for women writers. The admission of collaborations is another departure from many novel contests.

In addition to the cash award the winning author will receive royalties on American and Canadian book rights in excess of the $5,000 advance guarantee and will retain full motion picture rights, second serial rights, English rights, all rights to translation into foreign languages, and dramatic rights, relinquishing only American and Canadian book royalties under $5,000 and first serial rights.

JAMES T. SCOTT, GEORGIAN, NAMED TO HAMBURG POST

Captain James T. Scott, son of the late Major G. E. Scott, former well-known citizen of Eatonton, has been named American trades commissioner at Hamburg, Germany, news of the federal appointment having just been learned in Atlanta by relatives and friends.

Captain Scott, formerly of Eatonton, was connected with the Berlin office of the United States steamship lines as manager, and immediately following the world war served as representative of the United States government with Secretary Hoover in Germany, France and Belgium.

Captain Scott is well known in Atlanta. After completing his early education in the public schools of Eatonton, he moved to Atlanta and was connected with the Atlanta and West Point railroad for several years before being promoted to the management of the Clyde steamship line.

He is a cousin of Miss Myra Scott, well-known Atlanta woman, who is a member of the advertising firm of Eastman, Scott and company.

SPREAD OF CITY CERTAIN TO COME, SAYS WARD WIGHT

Growth in the next 10 years which will practically dwarf that of the past decade was predicted Thursday for Atlanta by Ward Wight, realtor, in an address at the meeting of the City club at the Athletic club.

Atlanta's principal business district within the next few years will be the section of Peachtree street between Ellis and Baker, while business sub-centers such as Little Five Points, Peachtree and Tenth streets, and Buckhead will be multiplied many times, Mr. Wight said.

The spread of apartment houses throughout the city and even outside of the city limits was pointed to by Mr. Wight, who predicted another real estate boom for Atlanta equal to the boom of 1912.

Mother of Atlanta Woman Succumbs In Pennsylvania

Mrs. H. L. Meredith, of 750 Ponce de Leon, wife of the Near East relief director for the southeastern states, left late Friday afternoon for Langhorne, Penn., to attend funeral services for her mother, Mrs. William B. T. Pryor, who died early Friday morning at the Pryor home in that city.

Mrs. Meredith was accompanied by her husband.

Mrs. Pryor was a member of an old Pennsylvania family and was a leader in church and civic work. She had been in poor health for some time, but news of her death was a distinct surprise to friends and her family. It was learned here.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith will return to the city the latter part of next week.

12:30 p. m., and two "shots" were required to produce death.

At the time of the slaying, Johnson was serving a year's sentence on the Jefferson county chain gang and was a trusty. He walked from the camp, 10 miles, broke into a house and stole a shotgun, walked to the negro church and slew the negro, who he believed was responsible for his incarceration, the prosecution sought to show in the trial.

The annual "faculty party" of Joe Brown Junior High school was held Friday afternoon at Mount Gilman camp grounds. The party is held yearly so that teachers and their families may become better acquainted. Professor F. A. Gaertner had charge of arrangements.

The improvement in schedules between Atlanta and Birmingham results from elimination of the movement of approximately three miles at Anniston, Ala., formerly required to get Southern trains to and from the Union station. At 12:01 a. m. Sunday the Southern will begin the use of its own station located at the intersection of the Birmingham and Mobile divisions, the point formerly known as Oxanna junction. The station fronts on Fourth street and is in convenient reach of the business and residential sections of Anniston over well-paved streets.

SOUTHERN TO CUT TRAIN SCHEDULES

Schedules of all Southern Railway system trains between Atlanta and Birmingham will be improved Sunday, from 10 to 30 minutes being cut from their running time, and on the same date the schedule of the "Birmingham Special" between Atlanta, Washington and New York will be improved, No. 29 reaching Atlanta at 9:35 a. m., 35 minutes earlier than formerly, and No. 30 leaving Atlanta at 5 p. m., 20 minutes later, with no change in time of departure from or arrival at Washington and New York. This announcement was made Friday by J. C. Beam, assistant general passenger agent of the Southern.

HEAVEN IS INDICTED

Youth With Odd Name Is Charged With Burglary.

William Heaven, 17-year-old white youth, Friday was indicted by the Fulton grand jury on a charge of burglary. The true bill alleged that Heaven, on the night of September 21, entered the store of S. H. Puckett and stole a quantity of candy, cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and snuff. Three negroes were named joint defendants in as many indictments returned Friday by the jury on charges of assault with intent to murder, assault with intent to rob and robbery. It is charged that the trio held up J. Pearl, of 1019 Washington street, and robbed him of $11; attempted to rob Jacob Greenbaum in his business establishment on Decatur street, and attacked Greenbaum with a knife.

In 1925 only 17 states in the Union collected sufficient revenue to meet their entire expenditures.

Jefferson Citizens Refute Statements About Bond Sales

Taking exception to a statement by Dr. L. G. Hardman, candidate for governor, in last Sunday's papers which asserted that in Jefferson county a bond issue of $250,000 was sold for $242,000, W. J. Stevens, chairman; H. C. Perkins, J. T. Dickson, members, and A. P. Little, clerk of the board of commissioners of Jefferson county, Friday made public copies of a letter asserting that the bonds in question were sold above par for $250,150, exclusive of interest.

"These being 4 1/2 per cent bonds, the purchase price was greater than that received by any other county prior to this sale," the letter states.

"You do our county and this board a great injustice when you advertise that Jefferson county bonds were sold at a discount of over three per cent. Jefferson county has always enjoyed a high credit, and her bonds sold at an abnormally high price, because of the fact that the credit of the county has always been kept intact.

"You state that practically all of this money (from the bonds) has been spent. This is as incorrect as your other statement. The county still has on hand and unused of this fund, $98,342.35."

CHILL OF WINTER
DUE NEXT WEEK;
FAIR FOR TODAY

Temperatures suggestive of winter's approach will be felt by Atlanta early next week, C. F. von Herrman, United States meteorologist, said Friday.

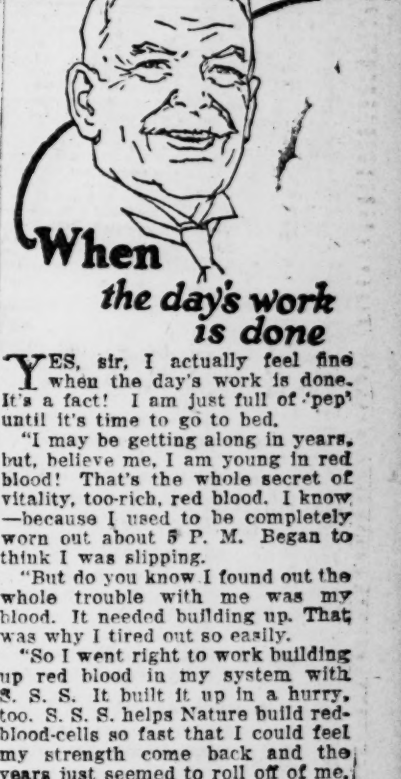

Fair weather will prevail for the immediate future, with temperatures today ranging between 69 and 87.

the same as Friday, the weather man said. Mr. von Herrmann looks for a sharp drop in the thermometer early next week, though Friday he could not say just how low the temperature will run.

Asked if there was danger of freezing, ing weather next week, in view of the approaching temperature drop, Mr. von Herrman replied with an air of certainty: "Oh, my, no."

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 28:—"I think Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are wonderful—I was a sufferer from trouble and I know what they did for me. I had only a few pimples at first, but this infection soon spread until they covered my face and neck and made me look disgraceful. They irritated me so I could scarcely keep my fingers off them. I tried various treatments, but none gave more than temporary relief. A friend recommended Resinol and I bought a jar of ointment and a cake of soap. After the second application of each, the itching stopped and when I had used the Resinol products for five weeks, there was not a trace of the trouble left." (Signed) Arthur Smith, 459 Hudson Ave.

INSTALLMENT VI. DORINDA SIGNS THE PAPERS.

As Goddard stared uncomprehendingly Dorinda added, "I made a bet with Chad Bailey about you a few minutes before you came in. He bet that you would be uttering advice and moral maxims within ten minutes of the time you got here, and I bet that you wouldn't. Of course, to be sportsmanlike, I had to give you the chance, and you took it." He told himself that she deserved all she had got and was still to get from life; but he showed no sign of irritation.

"Sorry," he said, easily. "Was it a big bet?"

"No. If it had been poor Chad couldn't have paid it if he'd lost—but then he never pays his losses. He's great on collecting, though, so I shall have to go down town and get his gloves this afternoon. She broke off and gave him a straight look.

"It's nice of you to take it that way. Some men would have been furious."

"I'm too noble," he said, simply. "Now, if you will sign those papers—"

"If you begin to fuss about them I shall think you really are annoyed—underneath. I'll sign the papers when I get ready. I'm a valuable client to your firm," she added coolly, "and I don't like to be rushed."

"Sign the papers, please!"

"Take your time. I'm happy." "Are you, really? Then answer my question? How does it feel to be the town's model young man?"

"The experience has its moments," the model young man placidly assured her. "When people begin to have parades for me and present me with loving cups it will be rather jolly. But, of course, it's a nuisance to have little boys follow me in the streets in the hope of learning my secret."

"What is your secret?"

"He shook his head at her.

"Just as curious as the little boys," he said reproachfully, and they both laughed.

"To bad it's too early for tea," she murmured. "I'd offer you some. As it is—will you have a whisky and soda or a cocktail?"

He shook his head again.

"Tut, tut. Would you undermine the foundations of the town's moral pillar?" He looked around. "Jove," he murmured longingly, "I'd like to read and study in this room!"

She checked a laugh, realizing that he was serious.

"It is a nice old room," she agreed. "My grandfather furnished it. He built the house, too. This is the kind of a room that cries out for the right sort of booklover. I often wonder how it endured father so long."

Not being able to think of the right answer to this interesting speculation Goddard remained silent. For a moment both pairs of young eyes—hers gray-green and vividly alic, his blue and thoughtful, stared into the heart of the fire. Then the unconsciousness of such, and having found the fountain pen drew a small table before her and laid the papers on it. She looked up at him as he stood waiting, and accepted the pen, but hesitated.

"So the uplifting influence must pass on and out," she said ironically. "Won't it send you back into the world an even stronger, nobler young man to know that the memory of this beautiful half hour—"

"Come, now, you're enough," the young man spoke firmly, and with a sudden set to his square jaw and a shuttered look that surprised her. "Sign the papers, please."

"He becomes masterful," she murmured with awe; but she signed the papers and he blotted them with a forgiving grin.

There was a sudden clamor of voices in the hall. The door of the library blew open, and three young persons ostentatiously assisted one another into the room. Goddard, having taken the papers from the hand of Miss Maxwell, straightened and looked at the group over, nodding as he recognized individuals. The thin, blonde, reedy youth with a face oddly suggesting a faun's, and with a faun's lightness and grace of movement, was Chad Bailey. Goddard had heard that Bailey was proud of this resemblance and deliberately fostered it by prancings and caperings and the blowing of imaginary pipes in his gayest moments. Indeed, in Paris he had been painted as a faun, and he was in the habit of exhibiting hall-tone reproductions of this work of art, while he vaguely explained that the original was in one of the big galleries. He had a long, pointed face, and very white, pointed teeth, which were usually revealed in carefree smiles. There was said to be some speculation over his ears, which were always covered by his thick, overlong blonde hair.

The girl, Goddard knew, was Kitty Perkins, Grandon's pet illustration of a wasted life. At a casual glance Miss Perkins gave no indication of the white flame of genius that burned within her. She was merely a thin, plain, red-haired girl, addicted to shell-rimmed spectacles, wabbly coiffures, and "artistic" gowns in primary colors. Her hands were beautiful. So were her red-brown eyes, when one really saw them. And when she sat at the piano and played, the flame within her shone through and one thought one saw a radiant creature, misty and shimmering; but that was merely the effect of Kitty's music.

Of Bryant Goddard knew less, and liked less what he knew. Bryant looked five years older than the other two, who were in their early twenties; and though they had their followers he appeared to have no friends but them. He was slender, dark, dour looking, immaculate as to dress, and with a highly premature bald spot. His diction and his speaking voice were things of genuine beauty, and he called attention to these by frequently criticizing the voices and diction of others. The members of this triumvirate, Goddard knew, were the boon companions of Horace Maxwell's daughter. All three wore the cap of their sophistication on one side.

Chad Bailey lurched toward the pair by the fireplace and waved a vague paw. He was very drunk.

"Lil Boopie josh'er sheep," he remarked. "Lef' 'em in d—ding—room. But 'er sheep knew where t' fin' her, all ri', all ri'. Shining papers wish perfly proper young man. Shavi!" He staid under the influence of a sudden memory. "How 'bout lil bet. Do I win'r do I loosh?"

"You win, Chad. I must stop betting with you, for you always win."

Dorinda spoke pleasantly, but the caller had a flattering impression that the abrupt appearance of her devoted sheep had not pleased the shepherdess. Assisted by a few pieces of furniture, Bailey reached Goddard's side. He was still in the evening clothes he had worn the night before, and though they had been taken off and dried, the garments were much the worse for the fountain bath he had shared at dawn with his hostess.

"Lo, ol'man," he said cordially, and clutched Goddard's arm to steady himself against the eccentricities of a swaying room. "Glad t' see you. Always glad t' see you. Steady re—re—lib'le fellow. Mos' ex'mpl'ry. Everybo'y shays sho'."

David slipped from under the clutching hands. For the moment the faun was an unattractive sight—an impression his hostess seemed to share, for she spoke hurriedly.

"Chad, for heaven's sake go home and take a cold bath. You promised you'd go right after lunch if I let you stay till then. Now, keep your word, if you can navigate."

To Goddard she added tersely, "I haven't been able to get rid of these three. They pretend they were hurt in the collision, but they weren't. They've been dozing around on the rugs and couches all morning, and drinking every time they woke up. Chad's the worst—at least he makes more fuss than the rest. I can't manage him myself, and I haven't any men servants now. Jim's worse than no one, as an aide."

Goddard rallied to the unspoken request.

"Is your car in commission after the accident?" he asked. "If it is, I'll take him home."

"The sedan isn't, but the roadster is. I'll be most awfully obliged if you will get him away."

Suddenly the law clerk realized that this was what he had been kept waiting for—the duty of acting as nurse to the besotted youth before him. A healthy anger rose in him.

Holder Delivers Bitter Attack on Governor Walker

BY PAUL STEVENSON,
Staff Correspondent.

Manchester, Ga., September 24.—In a bitter denunciation of Governor Clifford Walker, whom he named as the head of a great political machine trying to elect Dr. Hardman governor, John N. Holder tonight charged that the governor is using every branch of the state government day and night to elect Hardman.

"Cliff Walker, the littlest governor Georgia ever had, who is going out of office, populated by every man, woman and child in Georgia except those on his pay roll, is trying to keep his crowd in power by supporting Hardman. If Hardman is elected, John N. Holder charged, the governor is using every branch of the state government day and night to elect Hardman."

Holder reviewed what he called the "Cowardly persecution" waged against him by Walker and Anderson. "The people repudiated Walker and Anderson and they will repudiate them forever on October 6."

"Although the democrats of Georgia provided fair rules for their primary," Holder said, "George Carswell and J. O. Wood did not respect these rules. Three of them fought me in the first primary and I whipped two of them and I'm now whipping the third, but although all rules of fairness have been removed, Carswell and Wood, they are still running around Georgia, not only attacking me, but attacking me with damnable lies."

Holder said Cliff Walker had a machine with James Dozier, tax commissioner; John Vandiver, of the revenue department; Peter S. Twitty, same and fish department; F. R. Bennett, of the banking department.

"Why I can't appoint any officer but a stenographer in the highway department," he said, "Every employee is recommended by the engineer, the division engineer, the secretary or the maintenance engineer. Their names are sent to the highway commission for approval and two votes on the commission can reject any one of them. But Cliff Walker's department heads have their army of appointees where they can be hired or fired at will, and he has them all out working their heads off for Hardman."

Holder then declared that Hardman was not such a "great humanitarian" as he sets himself up to be. "Hardman has accounted $1,000,000, but if there ever was a coldblooded, hardhearted, selfish old miserly scoundrel, that man is Dr. L. G. Hardman," Holder said. "Walker goes out and Hardman goes in under their present scheme and I am the only thing standing between a perpetuation of this machine."

Holder said "Cliff Walker, the puny-minded, little, pious little fellow who has been rattling around in the shoes of real men, is laughing in his sleeve at putting over his little game. He will laugh and chuckle as he goes out of office with the ignominy and stigma of being the worst repudiated governor any state, anywhere ever had."

Holder disclosed in the opening of his speech that Georgia is just owing back into her own. He said two great things needed in Georgia are an educational survey, made of the state by competent men and the establishment of some system for marketing the crops of the state.

Holder delivered three speeches in Manchester. The first was to the employees of the Manchester Cotton mills, the second was a talk before the Manchester Kiwanis club, while the third was in the school auditorium. A large crowd greeted the candidate at the schoolhouse. I. H. Davis, former mayor, presided at the meeting. He first presented Rev. W. M. Barnett, Methodist minister, of Manchester.

The minister said he was a volunteer to reply to the reports circulated over the state concerning the religious life of Holder.

"I have served in conference with John Holder and there is not a layman in Georgia who has a better record for church service. He holds the honor of twice representing the Georgia conference of Methodists in the general conference. There is no more devout layman in Georgia than John Holder."

Gus Persons, of Talbotton, who served in the legislature with Holder 20 years ago, made the introductory speech.

"I want to refute for all time the talk that has been going around about Holder holding power in the highway department through a bill passed at midnight. Everybody in Georgia knows that before a bill can become a law in Georgia it must be signed by both the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives. It also goes to the governor, who examines it and has power to veto it. That ought to set at rest all talk about anybody knowing anything about the passage of that bill."

Mr. Holder stated emphatically that Georgia will have $12,000,000 available for highways next year and said at least ten millions of this can be used for construction. "I believe we can build as great a system of roads as any state in the south without issuing one dollar of bonds," he said.

Holder attacked the present administration of the state banking department. "All laws are dependent more or less in the men behind them," he said. "But I want to pledge you right now that the first thing I will do will be to clear out that department."

Holder attacked Governor Clifford Walker and the banking department for appropriating all personal funds to jobs as liquidating agents of banks regardless of the location of the banks.

"Clifford Walker has appointed Jim Dozier, of Athens, to more fat jobs with more fees to them than any man ever held before," Holder charged. "His opponent, Dr. Hardman, had conducted a campaign of vilification and abuse about him."

Holder reiterated his charge that Dr. Hardman offered to reapportion him as chairman of the highway commission if he would not run for governor.

in 74 counties and Hardman then charged he had no manager at Jefferson, my home town, but proposed an affidavit from the Hardman manager, who managed the election in Jefferson.

"In Commerce Dr. Hardman's own brother managed it, but I did not protest about that."

Holder ridiculed assertions by Dr. Hardman that Hardman had passed bills in the legislature providing for establishment of the tubercular sanatorium at Alto, to expand health department and other health measures. He read a telegram from Dr. T. H. Whitley, of Douglas county, in which Dr. Whitley, who was a member of the legislature, declared he was the man who introduced these bills.

Holder said he was a volunteer to reply to the reports circulated over the state concerning the religious life of Holder.

"I have served in conference with John Holder and there is not a layman in Georgia who has a better record for church service. He holds the honor of twice representing the Georgia conference of Methodists in the general conference. There is no more devout layman in Georgia than John Holder."

Gus Persons, of Talbotton, who served in the legislature with Holder 20 years ago, made the introductory speech.

"I want to refute for all time the talk that has been going around about Holder holding power in the highway department through a bill passed at midnight. Everybody in Georgia knows that before a bill can become a law in Georgia it must be signed by both the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives. It also goes to the governor, who examines it and has power to veto it. That ought to set at rest all talk about anybody knowing anything about the passage of that bill."

Mr. Holder stated emphatically that Georgia will have $12,000,000 available for highways next year and said at least ten millions of this can be used for construction. "I believe we can build as great a system of roads as any state in the south without issuing one dollar of bonds," he said.

Holder attacked the present administration of the state banking department. "All laws are dependent more or less in the men behind them," he said. "But I want to pledge you right now that the first thing I will do will be to clear out that department."

the voters in Jackson, the home county of Both Mr. Hardman and myself, ought to know us both better than any outsiders and that when they gave me a splendid majority over Dr. Hardman it meant they endorsed me and refused to endorse him. He didn't tell them that under the guise of erecting a monument to Jefferson the memory of Dr. Crawford W. Long, the discoverer of anesthesia, he erected a monument to his own vanity and to himself because he placed prominently on the very front side of the monument a long inscription about his giving the monument and on the back side of the monument he put an inscription that it was erected in memory of Dr. Long. The peculiar character of this monument is remarked by those who see it, due to the fact that it was so obviously designed as a tribute more to Dr. Hardman than to Dr. Long.

"If I am elected governor I will exert my influence against any tax increase. I will not call an extra session of the legislature unless some real emergency exists. I will seek to have the legislature amend the banking laws, the highway department laws and the agricultural department laws so that these important departments may function more effectively and may provide the utmost possible protection for the interests of our people."

Would Aid Farmers.
"I will urge upon the legislature the necessity of providing for a comprehensive survey of our educational system so that we may know what we have and what we need, and I will urge that our needs be provided for to the end that we may have in Georgia a thoroughly modern and progressive system of education. I will also lend my best efforts to obtaining from the federal government cooperation for our farmers by providing for them and other southern and western farmers a market information service. Such a service would keep the farmers informed as to when there was a surplus for their various products and where the market was overstocked."

Ideas are not tangible, and being radio-active they travel through ether. You cannot nail them down to stay put nor wrap them up. The realest of things, most unreal.

To be specific:

A great Parisian dressmaker creates a new dress. It scores a hit, becomes the talk of the town. The idea of the dress, and every successful dress is a materialized idea, is immediately adapted and developed in America.

Manufacturing on a scale is started—indeed, the whole American machinery of economical production and distribution is put into motion to bring to you a charming new dress with the imprint of Paris to sell at this nominal price—$15.

We have been at some pains to explain because the immense success of our $15 dresses can be accounted for in no other way.

FIREMAN KILLED, 2 HURT IN CON

Macon, Ga., September 24.—(AP)—William Norton, fire inspector, was almost instantly killed and Victor E. Armstrong, assistant chief of the Macon fire department, and driver, Lawrence Self, of the assistant chief's car, were perhaps fatally injured this morning when the assistant chief's automobile turned over while answering a fire alarm call from the Atlantic and Coal company. The injured were rushed to the hospital for treatment. Norton died before leaving the hospital. The wreck occurred at the intersection of Broadway and Hazel street. The car was traveling at a rapid rate of speed. It attempted to swerve around a line of cars to avoid hitting a truck, and when he made the turn, the rear of the fire auto struck a telephone pole and turned over several times.

COASTAL HIGHWAY SUIT IS DISCLOSED

An order dissolving a temporary injunction issued early in September and restraining the state from proceeding with a contract for construction of the Coastal highway was issued by Judge G. H. Low and in the order dissolving the injunction was signed by Judge Howard on the ground that the state had no right to sue for the highway. The order was signed by Judge Howard on the ground that the state had no right to sue for the highway. The Coastal highway will traverse through Chatham, Bryan, Liberty, and Glynn counties. These counties, under a special act of the Georgia legislature and approved by the voters, entered into a contract with the state highway department and the state bears no part of the carrying charges on said contract, the temporary restraining order enjoining the state from proceeding with the highway suit is dissolved and the injunction denied.

Hempstead, N. Y., September 24.—(AP)—Failure of a landing gear to function properly was blamed today for the wreck of the giant Sikorsky biplane and the death of his two companions. The crash occurred on the beach at Long Beach, California, after a flight of 15 minutes. The plane, a Sikorsky HO4S, was carrying the pilot and two passengers. The plane crashed into the water and the pilot and one passenger were killed. The other passenger was injured.

Frank was called as a witness at the inquest into the deaths of Jacob Smaloff, Russian mechanic, and Charles Clavier, radio operator of the Sikorsky plane, who died in the burning ruins when the plane crashed at the attempted take-off.

Earlier in the day District Attorney Edwards made public an affidavit from Colonel H. E. Hartney, former general manager of the Argonauts, Inc., original promoter of the crash, in which he stated that the crash was caused by a defective landing gear.

What action, if any, the grand jury may take, will probably be determined by the findings of the coroner's inquest.

Mayor Sims Gets Box of Candy

It is nice to be mayor of Atlanta. Especially is this true when a new candy shop opens in the city. Mayor Walter A. Sims, on the left, is receiving a box of newly-made candy from Edward L. Staderman, president of the Colonial Dame Candy company. The picture was taken at the opening ceremonies of the Colonial Dame Candy company's new store at 139 Peachtree street, Thursday. Hundreds of Atlantans visited the new candy shop at the opening and each received a souvenir, though not so large as the one for Mayor Sims—because he is the city's chief executive.

Heavy Buying Stimulates Prices on Stock Markets

With U. S. Steel common regaining the leadership of the market, stock prices moved upward in impressive fashion today on buying stimulated by easier money rates and constructive business news. The advance was by no means uniform, but closing quotations disclosed a long list of gains ranging from 1 to 5 points. Although prices succeeded in obtaining a following in a few specialties, public participation was reported to be on a relatively small scale.

Continuance of the 4 per cent rediscount rate by the New York Federal Reserve bank and reduction in Treasury's run on call money from 5 1/2 to 5 per cent allied, at least temporarily, the fears of a tightening of credit string.

General Motors, which has shared with steel the leadership of many markets in the last few months, moved up about a point in full tradable. Mack Trucks ran up 1 1/2 points, and the price of a sleeping short interest and most of the other motors received good support, despite expectations of a new weight.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Commodity prices were irregular. Active wheat futures sold off a cent or more a bushel on reports of increased world supplies. Cotton made slight recovery from the low levels reached in yesterday's session, but failed to rise more than 1/4 point higher. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee futures eased slightly.

Foreign Exchange Steady. In the air group, Chesapeake & Ohio common and Pere Marquette were elevated to new record high prices, the latter into a large volume of profit-taking, the former closing 5 points net lower, while the latter cancelled its early gain of 1 1/2 points.

POLICEMAN SPRAINS

ANKLE, THIEF FLEES

Police Officer C. P. Maddox sustained

a sprained ankle while chasing

a negro burglar in front of his home

Friday morning after two hand-to-hand battles with the negro, he reported to police headquarters.

Officer Maddox was on duty at the time and was awakened in his home on Hardee street at 2 o'clock

Friday morning by a noise just outside his window. He grabbed his pistol and, without waiting to dress, ran into his yard and found a negro carrying a large quantity of groceries away in a wheelbarrow. Officer Maddox grabbed the negro, took him into his house and summoned the police patrol wagon. While he was waiting for the police wagon the negro twice attempted to escape. In the last struggle the negro was knocked through a plate glass in Mr. Maddox's front door. The man, bleeding profusely from a wound in the head, escaped in the darkness as Officer Maddox sprained his ankle while chasing him.

The groceries were taken from an

L. V. Rogers store on Duval avenue, according to police records.

100,000 Tickets

For School Day

At Fair Sought

First definite assurance of a record-breaking attendance for the year's

Southeastern fair, which opens one week from today, was received Friday in applications for School-day tickets totaling nearly 100,000 from duty and private schools in Atlanta and a territory of 100 miles around Atlanta.

The largest quantity of School-day tickets ever asked for, before by school officials was 55,000, and the largest School-day attendance in history was nearly 65,000, last year.

School-day tickets were printed

Thursday by nearly 100 weekly newspapers within 100 miles of Atlanta, having a total circulation of more than 100,000, and applications for additional tickets in lots ranging from 500 to 60,000, including the one from Dr.

William A. Sutton, Atlanta superintendent of schools, were received during the 48 hours following the first appearance of the printed ticket in the weekly newspapers.

The printing order was placed Friday and tickets will be mailed today.

It was planned originally to have the School-day tickets issued solely by newspaper coupons, to be clipped from the papers and signed by parents and teachers. This plan was abandoned

Friday at the urgent request of more than a score of school officials

throughout the fair's territory, when it was found that insufficient copies of the newspapers and the little additional copies would be needed and the cost of additional copies would be excessive.

The newspaper coupons will be accepted in addition to the printed tickets, but additional School-day

tickets will be supplied direct through the office of the fair association.

Hubby Scores One.

"It was during the family battle."

"You seem to think a bad cold in the head means nothing to a woman," complained Mrs. Blackstone. "I don't know of anything more annoying."

"No," countered her husband with a rare flash of spirit. "How about

had been the case, intimating that he usually got in his regular eight hours when not on the road.

This 40-minute record will be introduced into the public market October 15. It has 20 minutes on each side, and is no larger than the average record of today, which will place it first in the market. It is expected to enable one to hear an entire program of music without ever having to jump up and change the record.

Story of Invention.

It is remarkable that such a record is possible without either a great increase in circumference or price. The record is made by means of a program of dinner music, recorded by the Hotel Commodore orchestra.

Edison's assistant, Mr. McLeod, made his first photograph. He was fooling around with the then not so widely used telephone, when he decided to make a record of the program. The master inventor sketched off a diagram and handed it to one of his

It was fixed up in time. A piece of tin foil was used for the first recording record.

"I'm going to make a machine that will talk," Edson told them.

It did. It still is.

In discussing the new phonograph record, Mr. Edson said that his father has been in the business two years.

History of Luxuries.

The phonograph industry has more than five idle years for the past six years, according to Mr. Edson. First came the automobile to soak up most of the money of the American era, followed the own-your-own-home era and shortly afterward the radio.

It is the tendency of the American public to go absolutely batty on some particular thing. The Edson says—such as the automobile, the radio, Florida real estate. Then, when the flurry is all over, such as was Florida's case, the public turns its attention to steady prosperity and life ever
